Introduction

This factsheet looks to give the facts a person would need to know to run snowboarding for a group of young people, or to do it for themselves if they are a young person. It should be read in conjunction with the factsheet FS120084 Scout Led Activities Index, and Policy, Organisation and Rules (POR) of The Scout Association.

What is snowboarding?

Snowboarding includes all snowsports on a single board. It can take place on snow slopes or artificial slopes.

What is a snowboarding permit?

The adventurous activity permit scheme is designed to ensure that only people with the relevant skills and experience lead adventurous activities for the young people. Therefore all activities classed as adventurous can only be led by someone holding the appropriate permit. Additionally young people (under 18) can take part in adventurous activities for themselves with personal activity permits.

A snowboarding permit is required for all Snowboarding activities that take place in terrain 1 or terrain 2, except those that take place on artificial slopes or nursery slopes. Definitions of terrains and nursery slopes can be found in POR (details can be found in FS120084 Scout Led Activities Index). Snowboarding activities in Terrain 0 do not require a snowboarding permit.

Levels of permit

There are three levels of permit available for Snowboarding. These are:

- On Piste
- Off Piste Terrain 1
- Off Piste Terrain 2

Definitions of on and off piste can be found in POR.

Additionally, each of these permits can be further restricted (such as through geographical locations, snowboard run grade etc) to end up with an individual permit to the level of the competence and requirements of any person.

Types of permit

There are three types of permit available for Snowboarding. These are:

- Personal – Allows a young person (under 18) to take part in snowboarding with others with a personal snowboarding or skiing permit.
- Leadership – Allows the permit holder to lead snowboarding or skiing for a single group.
- Supervisory – Allows the permit holder to remotely supervise more than one snowboarding or skiing group.

Permit limitations

- Personal – If you hold a personal snowboarding permit you can go snowboarding with others who hold a personal snowboarding or skiing permit. It does not allow you to go snowboarding with anyone not holding a snowboarding or skiing permit.
- Leadership – If you have a permit to lead snowboarding then you will need to be with your group at all times. Details of group sizes for snowboarding can be found in POR and can be made up of snowboarders and/or skiers, but as the permit holder you will need to be on a snowboard.

- Supervisory – If you hold a permit to supervise snowboarding then you can supervise up to three groups remotely. This should be from no further away than 3km. You should also ensure that adequate systems have been set up to monitor and communicate with the groups. You remain responsible for all the groups you are supervising, but designate someone with the appropriate skills to be the leader of each group.

Designations

When remotely supervising groups the holder of a snowboarding supervisor permit needs to designate a leader for each group. This designation lasts only for the current activity while the permit holder is supervising.

People designated as group leaders should hold the skills and be responsible enough to lead a group safely in the terrain in which they are. There is no problem with making young people group leaders if they are up to the role, and it can be used as a useful development tool.

Further definitions

Permit exemptions – As described in POR, it is possible to get short term personal permit exemptions. These are designed for use while on snowsports holidays and getting instruction from professional instructors, to allow personal practice at a suitable level while away from the instructors (i.e. instruction every morning, personal practice every afternoon).

They can only be given for on piste personal snowboarding, not leading or supervising, and last for the length of the holiday (maximum of one week).

Exemption can only be given with agreement from both a snowboard instructor (minimum qualification of BASI Level 2 Snowboard Instructor, equivalent or higher) and the young person's responsible leader. It must limit the level to which the young person can snowboard based on the technical input of the instructor and a personal suitability check by the leader.
