How does this look? It may be too big for the size of paper?

Does this make it too small? How does it measure up to any letters you send out?

This size could be okay, but what about the style. Is it easier to read anything that looks like handwriting?

You might prefer this for headings, but how would it feel if the whole page was closely typed in this style?

This is probably what anyone at Primary School would be used to seeing… It's used a lot for it's clarity.

Do you write and photocopy your handwriting – or scribble the odd note home… do you always get a reply?

Everything depends on the person receiving the message – what do they need to decipher your code?
